

Biography

Associate professor Jana Žiljak Gršić, Ph.D.

Dean of the Zagreb University of Applied Sciences.

Born in 1972 in Zagreb, Croatia. Graduated from the University of Zagreb, Study of Design at the Faculty of Architecture in 1996 and obtained a university degree and the professional title of graduate designer. In 2007, she received her PhD from the Faculty of Graphic Arts, University of Zagreb in the scientific discipline of technical sciences, scientific field of graphic technology.

She is the winner of the National Science Award for 2010 for Outstanding contribution to the development of science for the discovery and technology of dye and information management in the visual and near infrared spectrum under the brand name Infraredesign, which she equally shares with the associates.

She is an associate member of the Croatian Academy of Engineering. She is a regular member of the Croatian Designers Association. She is a member of the Expert Council of the Zagreb University of Applied Sciences.

She is a permanent court expert witness for graphic technology, design, manuscripts, documents, securities, money, pictures, credit and other cards.

She is employed at the Zagreb University of Applied Sciences and additionally works at the North University.

Jana Žiljak Gršić, Ph.D. has published: the textbook Security graphics, individualisation of securities and screening models, TVZ, 2014.

According to the Croatian scientific bibliography she has published: author books (4), chapters in the book (7), original scientific papers of A category (5) of which in CC journals (2), scientific papers in other journals (22), published invited lectures at conferences (1), scientific papers in conference publications with an international review (34), other papers in conference publications with a review (8), abstracts in conference publications (7), unpublished participations at conferences (1), dissertations (1), master's theses (1), other types of papers (4), patents (3), dissertation, master's and diploma theses mentorship (19).